“ Kent was a quiet friend and I enjoyed playing games on Facebook with him. I sense that he was one of those one in a million people who loved life deeply and nature soothed his soul. He is now in the Heavens where surely there is a grander version of the nature on earth. He is loved by his Father in Heaven even more than can possibly imagined.

“ I grew up with Kent's daughters and was constantly out and about near his home. Kent always took the time to ask how I was doing and make some small talk with me. I respected that he was firm but not mean, he had that strength that let him be gentle. He was a good man.

“ Kent was always kind to me growing up. A fantastic neighbor and friend who would help in anyway he could. He always had a kind word or a warm “hello how are ya?” If your bike needed adjusting he was right there. His pork chops were the best I’ve ever tasted and he was a great cook all around. Kent we miss you. Till we meet again.
